The Men for the English Championship.

[From the London (Sunday) Times, Feb. 10.]

At last the "great unknown" for the championship has become personified. On Friday night about ten o'clock Jen Mace gave the name about which there has been so much speculation for some time past, and, after all, it turns out to be his late opponent, Joe Goss, who, notwithstanding his indifferent performance upon the last occasion, is likely, now that he is in something like "form," to prove himself in every respect worthy of his chaperon, Jem Mace.

A rounion of lovers and professors of the noble art of solf-defence was held last evening at Lincoin Hall, corner of Eighth avenue and Thirty-third street. The attendance was large, and of that peculiar character which is generally to be found present at fancy meetings of the fisticular order, comprising representatives from almost every grade of society. The crowá was, however, minity made up of individuals who hore on their countenances a sort of puglisatic brand, and who, sucking com ort from offensively scented cigars, or from the inevitable quit of solace, made remarks upon the performances of the evening in the vernacular which makes up the vocabulary of the ring. The combatants were mainly amateurs, some of them being mere boys. There was, however, a flevily mill between McMullen and Bennett, in which considerable science was shown. Both men gave evidence of being able to make good use of their props, and although Bennett is the stronger man and has the longer reach, hoMullen's science proved too much for him. Young Grady and young Edwards aiso made some good sport, the latter being decidedly the smarter man that showed up last hight. He both tapped his opponent's claret and closed to some extent his peopers without getting anything like a bruss throughout the set-to. The evening's proceedings closed with a wind up between Tom Bowee and Con Fitzgerald, in which both mee showed themselves well able to use their mauleys both offensively and de-

OBITTARY.

The Rev. Michael McCarron, D. D., Arch-deacon of the Archdiocese of New York. The Catholic Church in New York has lost a venerated desiastic, the State a good and respected citizen, and St. Mary's parish a pious and energetic pastor, by the decease of the Rev. Dr. Michael McCarron, Archdeacon of this Archdiocese, who died at his residence in Pits street, in this city, at four o'clock yesterday afternoon. He had reached his sixty-fourth year, and during the past two years has been suffering from a complication o disorders; but the immediate cause of his death was a disorders; but the immediate cause of his death was an attack of Bright's disease of the kidneys, which had within the last few days assumed a shape that betokened certain dissolution. The venerated Archdeacon was a native of the county of Monaghan, Ireland, where he received his early education, after the completion of which he was sent to the celebrated Maynooth College, in Kildare, to finish his theological studies. Here he remained until he had completed his ecclesiastical course, and was ordained a priest. Shortly after his ordination he came to the United States, nearly thirty years ago, and was first assigned to a curacy in St. James' church (the present cathedral) in Brooklyn, where he remained for about one year. Subsequently he was transferred to the pastorate of St. James' church in this city; and shortly afterwards was appointed pastor of St. Joseph's church in the Sixth avenue, where he remained until about twelve years since, when the late Archbisnop Hughes placed him in charge of the large congregation worshipping in St. Mary's church, corner of Grand and Pitt streets, the pastorate of which he held at the time of his decease. The labors of the lamented archdeacon 'cannot be even summed up in this brief obituary notice. At the time of his arrival here, the Catholic community was greatly agitated on the subject of education, being led in that regard by Archbishop Hughes. Father McCarron, then in his vigor and prime, entered with his whole heart and soul into this field of labor; and amid all the learned clergy of the Catholic community more seconded the efforts of the late archbishop more warmly, or with greater fervor, than did the subject of this notice. He took hold of the matter in a practical manner, and after his appointment to the pastorate of St. Mary's, made it his special business to place on a firm foundation those schools in his parish which have ever since been such favorites in the Catholic community. The handsome and commodious church in which St. Mary's congregation now worship was attack of Bright's disease of the kidneys, which had

An important decision has been made by Adjutant General Marvin in regard to the case of John Durr, a member of the Fifth regiment, who, upon the ground of not being a citizen, claims that he is not liable to any military duty in the State militia. Judge Advocate Joachimson, Second brigade, considers, from the fact of the man having voluntarity signed the roll and received his arms and equipments, he is undoubtedly a member and can be held to service. Had he joined under compulsion or been emisted with frandulent design the matter would be different. This decision is approved by the Adjutant General.

POLICE INTELLIGENCE.

RAID ON A KENO BANK .- At five o'clock yesterday evening Sergeant Wade, of the Second precinct, with ten officers, made a descent upon a keno establishment in the basement of No. 87 Nassau street, capturing twenty-one persons and taking possession of the implements in use in the game. Sergoant Wade having had reason to suspect the existence of the "bank" in this reason to suspect the existence of the "hank" in this locality, went into the saloon, some time before five, accompanied by one of his policemen, both being dressed as civilians. He found the occupants of the room all busily engaged in this interesting game of chance, and stood by as a spectator for some time. One of the gamesters, however, recognized the Sergeant, notwithstanding his disguise, and, although he had four buttons on his card, and so was near being a winner, be quietly relinquished his place and shipped out. When he had made observations enough for his purposes, he sent out his assistant for the other officers who were in waiting, and, without difficulty or resistance, accomplished the arrest. The long train of men was marched off to the Second precinct station house, amidst the joers and laughter of the crowd, who followed them, tunnultmously shouting "Keno! keno!" until they had reached the station house. The paraphernalia of the game, consisting of four tables, meety numbered marbles, forty-four red and white checks, a keno urn, two hundred and nine large keno cards and two and a half packages of small once, a cigar box of black talley buttons and $1.60 in money, were conveyed, together with the captives, in triumphal procession to the police quarters. The manager of the tables, W. R. Grigg, claimed to be only part proprietor, and the keeper of the porter house over the keno saloon, from whom it is ostensibly rented, Mr. C. Romer, named one Charley Witfield as the person responsible to him for the rent, which he maintained was the only interest he had in the establishment. As, however, he was shrewdly suspected of being himself the principal agent in the matter, he was held with the others, who were all committed for hearing before a magistrate in the morning. The names and occupations of those arrested are as follows:—Charles Bronson, clerk; Richard Francis, clerk; James Anderson, clerk; William Kalony, clerk; ira Stephens, clerk; john B. T. Stewart for a $50 suit of clothes. Mr. Ewen, at first believing the order to be genuine, allowed Johnson to select a coat, pair of pantaleons and vest. Johnson donned the coat and vest, and as he was about leaving the store Mr. Ewen imagined the possibility of the order being a forgery. Johnson was accordingly detained and the order exhibited to the paying teller of the Pacific Bank, who pronounced Mr. Stewart's name attached thereto to be a forgery. Officer Brady, of the Fourteenth precluct, was sent for and took Johnson in charge. Later in the day the order was shown to Mr. Stewart, who, of course, declared it to be a forgery. Johnson was taken before Alderman McBrien, and on the necessary affidavits committed to the Tombs for trial in default of $500 bail. THE PROPOSED QUARANTINE IN KINGS COUNTY.

Indignation Receiving of Citizens in Brooklyn-Resolutions. Remarks, etc.

A meeting of citizens resident of Kings county was held last evening at the rooms of the Board of Supervisors, in the Court House, Fulton street, for the purpose of taking some action opposing the passage of a bill by the Legislature locating a quarantine in any part of the county. The meeting was called by the Board of Supervisors, and was very slimly attended—a fact, perhaps, owing to the inclemency of the weather and disagressable condition of the streets.

Resolved, that we most earnestly protest against the pasage of the bill, and call upon our i analors and representatives in the Legislature to use all honorable means to secure its defeat.

The Hon. John C. Jacobs, representative of the Ninth Amembly district, being called upon by the meeting made a few remarks in relation to the subject under discussion. He proposed to look at the matter in a practical and philosophic manner. If this quarantine station were established upon Coney Island or any place even where there could be the remotest analytion that harm would follow its establishment, then the safety or at least the material prosperity of the people was endangered. Where would property in this city be if this establishment were effected at the place aimed at? It would be reduced twenty-five per cent for the reason that the people off from pestitence—they never approach it. It was said that no danger would result from the establishment of this station. There might be mone, but there was danger in the thought even that there might be, and there lay the whole trouble. No danger in it? Why, then, there was no danger in the incendiary's torch—none in this wide world of Christondom. No danger in it? Why there was danger in the incendiary's torch—none in this wide world of Christondom. No danger in it? Why there was danger from the very inception of this bill to the end, and he said here, as he was prepared to say elsewhere, that, despite his porsonal friendship for any man, the representative of this county was propared to say elsewhere, that, despite his porsonal friendship for any man, the representative of this county is was defeated; it was backed up by a powerful influence; by the influence of men who for the last six years had grown rich out of this quarantine purposed to the county it was defeated; it was backed up by a powerful influence; by the influence of men who for the flast six years had grown rich out of this quarantine county was rich and could afford to regard with favor the establishment of thi

THE FISHRILL RIOTERS.

The hearing of the Fishkill Landing. An immense crowd was in attendance all day long. Over thirty witnesses were examined, including those of the prosecution and defence. The testimony generally bore somewhat heavy against the accused. During the examination both Joseph Bull, the man who was driven from Fishkill, and Davis, the hasband of the woman whom it is stated Bull has cohabited with, were present. After the counsel on both sides had summed up Justice Hughson decided to hold all of the accused but one, eight in number, to ball in the sum of $200 each. A city of Poughkeepsie warrant for a breach of the peace was then served on the prisoners, for which they gave ball in the sum of $100 each to answer at the next Court of Sessions.

During the trial considerable side commentary was noticeable, and when the case ended one man was heard to say, "Let's ride the bull anyhow." When officer Shields stepped forward to serve the warrant from the Recorder at the city of Poughkeepsie, the counsel for the Prisoners instructed his citents not to go, wheresupon officer Shields exclasimed, "If I am ordered to arress ron officer Shields exclasimed, "If I am ordered to arress ron officer Shields exclasimed, "If I am ordered to arress ron officer Shields exclasimed, "If I am ordered to arress ron officer Shields exclasimed, "If I am ordered to arress ron officer Shields exclasimed, "If I am ordered to arress ron of the prisoners instructed his citents not to go, wheresupen officer Shields exclasimed, "If I am ordered to arress ron of the prisoners instructed his citents not to go, wheresupen officer Shields exclasimed, "If I am ordered to arress ron of the prisoners instructed his citents not to go, wheresupen officer Shields exclasimed, "If I am ordered to arress ron of the prisoners instructed his citents not to go, wheresen the prisoners instructed his citents not to go, wheresen the prisoners instructed his citents in the country of the prisoners instructed his citents in the prisoners instructed his citents in the priso

Hoboken.

A Max Shot by His Wife at a Ball-Jealousy

Cause—Curious Revelations.—On Friday night a ball was given by Protection Engine Company, No. 1, of Union Hill, at Odd Fellows' Hall, Hoboken, of which company John Geschwindt is treasurer. This man had been married five weeks ago to a Miss Dobbs, of Guttenberg, with whom, it is alleged, he had contracted an illicit intimacy several months ago; and it is further alleged, he married her under the strong persuasions of his friends to avoid a scandal in the family and neigh borhood. Previous to the ball on Friday night he se cretly issued an invitation to a young woman he in-tended to take as partner, at the same time pretending to his wife that, as the latter had no particular desire to go, he would invite a relative of hers. In order, how-ever, to play the double game effectually, he did not issue the invitation to this relative till two days be fore the ball, it being then too late for a youn suspicion as well as curiosity, resolved to pay a visit to the scene. When she arrived all was "merry as a marcovering from the surprise, and without exhibiting an tain Donovan seized sixty-six kegs of smuggled liquor, consisting of rum and gin, which had been taken from the steamship Hermann and concealed in sheds beling to Gardner, Harss & Co., adjacent to the Br dock. Officers being left in charge, the Captain returned with a wagon to remove the liquor, when he found a gang of men, mostly sallors, disposed to dispute the proceedings, and one of them drew a revolver and threatened to shoot him if he persisted in removing the liquor. This man was arrested, however, and is held to await the action of Commissioner Jackson. The police officers, having drawn their revolvers, awad the gang into submission, and the liquor was removed. The individual arrested was brought before Judge Bohnstedt, but nothing to inculpate him was cloited.

business in Markot street was taken before the City Police Justice on a search warrant, with a view of recov-ering a valuable gold watch and a set of jewelry, which ering a valuable gold watch and a set of jeweiry, which he had in his possession. Upon an investigation of the affair it was ascertained that the gentleman had procured the articles from William White, of Chimbers street, New York, in exchange for a chattel mortgage he had on the latter's furniture. White went to the store of one Peter J. Clauwers, No. 537 Sixth avenue, New York, where he procured the articles through the dodge of asking the elerk to place the valuables in a package, and diverting the attention of the shopkeeper, substituting a similar package, in which was some hard substance, for the valuables. The gentleman arrested in Newark promptly returned the watch and jewelry to the owners upon the facts in the case becoming known to him. The man White was recently arrested in New York for committing similar offences, and the gentleman whom he duped has preferred another charge against him.

New Jersey Railroods and Canala.—The Comptroller of the State has presented to the Legislature copies of the reports of the various railroads and canals filed in his office. The total receipts of railroads are $13,436,174.36, and the total expenditures $9,692.300.27. The largest sums are from the Central, New Jersey and Morris and Essex, which companies report as follows:—Central, receipts, $3,581,244.28; expenditures, $1,963,975.69. New Jersey, receipts, $1,170,862.40; expenses, $981,847.46. Morris and Essex, receipts, $1,020,077.84; expenses, $715,208.12. The canals report receipts as being $1,919,626.86.

saved them from the humiliation of being again placed under martial law.

Now, when it is too late, they rail against their press for not austaining the policy of the President, and for its articles in opposition to the government. They no longer have any hope. They are in the position of a man sentenced to be hung; a very slight hope remains that the President may veto the bill, or that it may be killed in the House, and that the next Congress may give them better terms. Mayor Monroe, whose head will certainly come off if the bill becomes a law, takes the matter very coolly, and says he is ready to weate when compelled to do so. He has the consolation of knowing that he will not be the only victim, that Governor Wells & Co. will lose place and power, and that new men will administer the affairs of the State. In this he may be mistaken.

the affairs of the State. In this he may be mistaken.

GOVERNON WELLE' VETO.

To-day Governor Wells sent in his velo of the bill recently passed to provide tor a new constitution. It takes the ground that the bill is unconstitutional. What action the Legislature will take is not known; but it is generally believed the passage of Slevens' (amended) bill will not affect their action, and they will pass the bill over the veto of Governor Wells.

The Legislature seems to be careless as to results, and determined to let things take their course, no matter how bad the results may be for the people. It is a fight between them and Governor Wells, neither party being disposed to yield.

Politics in this State are decidedly mixed. There is a race for power. To-day the Legislature is ahead on the home stretch; to-morrow Governor Wells may pass the winning post several lengths ahead.

A "ballerina" of the Modena theatre, named La Bar-bizan, a few evenings ago, more than usually excited by the acclamations of the public, executed a pas with a wrong calculation of distance, which carried her over the footlights into the orchestra. In the passage her dress caught fire from the lamps and she was immediately in a blaze, which, however, was promptly extin-guished by the musicians, who enveloped her in their paletots. She was carried out senseless, but was shortly afterwards found to have sustained no serious injury.
